TEXT FORMATTING INSTRUCTIONS

The Biomedical Symposium Program will be displayed as web pages, so certain text formatting and symbols may not display correctly. Here are some tips:

- To include italicized text, you must use the HTML wrapper for italics. Italicized text must begin with `` and end with ``. Example, `this text would be in italics`.
- To include bold text you must use the HTML wrapper for bold. Bold text must begin with `` and end with ``. Example, `this text would be bold`.
- To include superscripted text you must use the HTML wrapper for superscript. Superscript text must begin with `^{` and end with `}`. Example, `^{this text would be superscripted}`.
- To include subscripted text you must use the HTML wrapper for subscript. Subscript text must begin with `_{` and end with `}`. Example, `_{this text would be subscripted}`.
- Other than the items above, HTML tags are not allowed and will not display correctly. Please do not bold or italicize your abstract title.
- Symbols and special characters should be inserted using Microsoft Word's Insert Symbol capability. When the final document is ready, copy and paste the Word text into the online abstract form.
- Hawaiian diacritical elements (kahako and `okina) that rely on special fonts may not translate correctly. If possible, use the Insert Symbol capability to produce acceptable substitutions. For example, ō can be produced with the symbol Latin Small Letter O With Macron. Okina can be replaced with ` (Grave Accent).
- The advantage of our online system is that you will be able to check the display of your abstract immediately after it is submitted. If you notice that important elements of your abstract are not displaying correctly, send a PDF of your abstract that reflects the proper appearance to biosymp@hawaii.edu (be sure to include your Poster #). We will make every effort to help you achieve the desired results.
